

Washington County Receives Healthiest Employer of Oregon 2016

Washington County has been recognized by the Portland Business Journal for the second year as one of the healthiest employers in Oregon. The Healthiest Employer Awards Program recognizes organizations that are committed to creating a healthy workplace and have demonstrated that commitment in various ways. Washington County works to emphasize and reinforce a culture of wellness and individual health awareness by providing access to free biometric screenings, online personal health assessments, health-related workshops and other strategies which support the overall health of employees and their families.

According to County Administrator Robert Davis, "Not only is our wellness program the right thing to do for the health and well-being of our employees, it is also a cost-effective program for our taxpayers."

Washington County joins several other well-known award winners who have 1,500 or more employees including Samaritan Health Services, Fred Meyer Stores, Meredith Corporation.
